Sixties sweet inspiration for summer trends

Bright, bold colours, maxi dresses, cotton shirts, lace and sheer fabrics are just a few of the fashion trends that are set to be popular this summer.

Styles from the 60s including wide leg pants, groovy patterns and the classic animal print have come back to the catwalk and are fashionable once again.

Warkworth stylist and store owner Katya Maker says her favourite look for this season is bright colours.

“Ladies should make some colour combinations with their outfits that they have never tried before,” she says.

“Try wearing royal blue pants and a mustard shirt, turquoise shoes and a forest green suede belt or a purple cardigan for example. However, my advice is to stick to trends that complement your figure and keep to your personal style. Invest in a few key pieces and work around your existing wardrobe. Comfort and confidence is the key to looking great effortlessly.”

Boutique Dianne’s owner Dianne Macrae Moses says light beige/creamy colours, along with pale greens and blues on delicate fabrics, will make for some standout outfits this summer.

“Tunics and long ‘floppy’ cotton shirts both coloured or white will look great over shorts or three quarter leggings. Team outfits with chunky, colourful and intriguing jewellery.”

Dorothy’s owner Dorothy Goudie says the casual boyfriend jacket or blazer style jacket is stylish for any age.

“Roll the sleeves up to three-quarter length or wear it out with a belt around it. They look great open with a t-shirt or top underneath and some large chunky jewellery.”

Boho and hippy styles from the 60s and 70s will be popular this season.

Warkworth owner Brenda Hawley agree that floral prints are always prominent and look vibrant in summer.

“From small and delicate to big and bold patterns, anything floral will work,” Tracey says.

“Popular dresses will be feminine sundress styles, with layers and frills in all lengths but knee length is most popular.”

Fearless footwear for summer

It is not just what's on the clothing racks that is harking back to imitate the glamour of the 1970s; footwear is following the same trend.

Cork-soled 'flat-form' sandals and wooden-soled platform heels are back in fashion, as well as strappy, open-toed sandals in light brown, gold and bright colours.

White dresses and gold sandals is a chic look that is almost timeless, while funky colourful sandals teamed with denim shorts and a cotton shirt will look effortlessly cool.

Fashion stylist and owner of Katya Maker Boutique Warkworth, Katya Maker says two tonal stacker and platform heels will complement colourful outfits.

"Laced shoes are popular for summer as well, whether the laces are used for decoration or just practical detail," she says. "Clogs and wedges in bold colours are good all year round."

Top summer accessories include:

- Retro aviator sunglasses
- Colourful sandals
- Chunky jewellery
- Coloured belts
